COMPANY IS CHARGED WITH CROWDED CARS

Four Instances Cited by Members of District Railway Commission, Who Will Appear as Witnesses
Against Capital Traction Corporation.

For the second time within a few weeks action of the utmost interest to every user of the street cars of the District of Columbia, and of great importance to the transportation companies of the same territory, has been begun before Judge Mulwony, in the Police Court.

Information has been filed through the District Attorney's office charging the Capital Traction Company, in four specific instances, of overcrowding its cars. Five complaints of an almost similar nature have been entered heretofore against the Washington Railway and Electric Company, but have not yet come to trial.

This is the first time that information under the act of Congress of May 22—the Union Station act—has been made against the Capital Traction Company in the Police Court. The decision is of such importance that United States District Attorney Baker himself will conduct the case before Judge Mulwony.

The street railway company evidently intends to fight, and through its attorney, R. Ross Perry, entered a plea of not guilty to each of the four charges.

Mr. Perry also asked and obtained from Judge Mulwony the right to a jury trial.

In case it files a motion to quash and Judge Mulwony overrules the motion it can carry the matter to a higher court. In case no motion to quash is made the case will come to trial in the Police Court before a jury.

The complaining witnesses who supplied the information on which the United States attorney acted are Harry E. Eddy, secretary of the District Railway Commission; C. F. Blondell, and E. E. Briscoe. Mr. Eddy alleges overcrowding on a Fourteenth street car on April 8. Blondell alleged that the same line offended by overcrowding a car on its Seventh street line on April 12. Briscoe brings two charges, both for overcrowding on the Seventh street line, one offense occurring, it is alleged, on April 7, the other on April 10.

United States Attorney given appeared for the United States before Judge Mulwony. He did not oppose the demands of Mr. Perry and made no objection to a jury trial.

It is expected that through these cases a clear understanding of just what is meant by the words of the statute "without crowding said cars," will be reached. The penalty provided under the law is not more than $1,000 for each offense.

NAGEL WILL SPEAK AT "SANE" FOURTH

Secretary Charles Nagel, of the Department of Commerce and Labor, will make the principal address at the citizens' celebration of the Fourth of July.

In a letter to Commissioner Macfarland, chairman of the joint committee of the Board of Trade and Chamber of Commerce, Secretary Nagel said that he was glad to take part in the National Capital's celebration of the nation's birthday, as he heartily believed in the efforts for a safe and sane Fourth of July.

He added that he hoped an example might be set by Washington that would aid the movement in all the cities of the country. Expression of approval accompanied by contributions are received daily by the committee.

W. V. Cox, treasurer of the committee, today acknowledged the following subscriptions: James F. Oyster, $10; L. A. Barr, $10; Saks & Co., $10; F. H. Bethell, $10; Milburn, Heister & Co., $10; Hydraulic Press Brick Company, $10; S. J. Prescott, $10; J. Maury Dove, $10; Hecht & Co., $10; Philippsborn & Co., $10; Dr. George M. Kober, $5.

The total amount received is $885.

clase Brockwell, Joseph Earl Hill, Jr., Hazen Williams, Marguerite Cecilia Boswell, Winifred Emily Crosland, Helen Goldsmith, Hazel Dewitt Smith, Ruchiro Kawashima, Section 69—Joseph Loeffler, Belva Goepfert, Mary Elizabeth Lanigan, Catherine Marie Viehmann, Ollie Ethel Wigginton.

TELLS TRUTH ONLY, SAYS MAJOR BURKE

"Buffalo Bill" Does Not Need Press Agent for Strange Tales.

Major John M. Burke, veteran advance man, press agent, and Indian authority, patted his expansive belt line, stroked an ornate pair of whiskers and observed feelingly:

"You may say that all the old features will be retained in the mammoth production known as Buffalo Bill's Wild West Show, now combined with Pawnee Bill's Far East Show, which will come to this city Monday and Tuesday next.

"You may tell the public further that the greatest babel of tongues since the late Esperanto congress probably will be heard when the big show unfolds here tomorrow. Colonel Cody's original exhibition covered about fifteen languages, which is talking some itself. Major Gordon Lillie's Oriental aggregation, however, embracing people from almost all sections of the Far East, will run the language total up to, say, twenty-five, no, at least thirty. But this is a mere sidelight. I have been press-agenting so long, about thirty-five years, I guess, that these little details slip me.

High Dive of Frenzo.

"What I desire now to call the particular attention of an expectant public to is the high dive of Frenzo, a half-breed Arab, who, without the aid of mechanical appliances, makes one of the most thrilling dives it has ever been the pleasure of man to witness. I regard this as the thriller of modern times. Frenzo dives from a high mast upon an inclined platform arranged at such an angle that he continues his rapid descent until a curved end of the platform acts to retard his forward movement and he gracefully ascends to a height sufficient to cause him to rise in the air and land on his feet. There is no loop-the-loop automobile there, no mechanism of any kind. Frenzo does it with his sleeves rolled up and nothing concealed."

"How far does this Frenzo dive?" the major was asked.

"It matters not," said the major, reflectively. "A hundred feet is the same to him, perhaps, as thirty. There was no regular distance decided upon until it was seen just what Frenzo could do, and now there seems to be no limit.

He Is a Fatalist.

"Frenzo is a fatalist," continued the veteran, after his words had sunk deep into the mind of the listeners. "He believes that no dive can kill him until his time arrives, and then that nothing can prevent his death. Hence, Frenzo is utterly reckless, utterly reckless."

And the major puffed upon a big cigar.

"Here are some clippings about this wonderful show," said he, continuing. "Out of them you ought to be able to get a good story. I really haven't had time to think up anything new. Do you know the weather is getting—hot?"

Then the major shoved across a batch of stuff he declared had never been printed, except in different language, and went ahead signing passes.

Major Burke is what you might call a consistent press agent. He seems to know the weather is getting—hot."

"Hurry, Dearie.
"Mother wants to get to Eberly's,
718 Seventh street, to take advantage of that offer whereby they will pay our entire gas bill for the month of June.
"And if you are a good girl,
mother will buy you a new dress

RECORD ATTENDANCE AT ADVENTIST TENT

Many Visitors From Washington Greet Delegates for First Time.

By far the largest crowd that has yet been present at the camp of the Seventh Day Adventists at Takoma Park today attended the services in observance of the Adventist's Sabbath. Hundreds of people came to the camp from Washington, filling the cars all morning and afternoon, and giving the park the appearance of a religious shrine.

So big was the crowd that attended the religious services that the tent in which all the general conference meetings are being held was packed almost with the population of a small city.

It was especially a day of reunion, many of the Adventist visitors from Washington greeting for the first time members of the faith who are here from almost every foreign country.

Among those from Washington was Representative Halvor Steenerson of Minnesota, who enjoys a wide acquaintance among the Adventists of his district. He greeted many of his old friends from home who are here as delegates to the general conference.

A feeling prevails among the Adventists that former Elder Alonzo T. Jones, whose credentials as a minister of the Gospel were withdrawn from him by order of the executive council and who is fighting to regain his prestige in the church, intends to push his case to the limit before he finally drops it. The inclination of the church leaders to discuss the case also pervades the rank and file, but notwithstanding the random comments heard would indicate that there is expectation of seeing the former elder put up a stiff fight to override the action of the executive council.

A report that Mr. Jones has consulted a Washington attorney to advise him regarding the conduct of his case before the general conference has had somewhat of a disquieting effect. Investigation shows that Jones' fight is likely to be a one-man affair, there being little or no disposition to create a local trouble in the present conference.

TENT WILL SERVE AS CHURCH HOME

Novel House of Worship for Covenant Congregation
in Summer Months.

Beginning tomorrow night the Church of the Covenant will hold services every Sunday evening in a large tent at the corner of Sixteenth and Monroe streets northwest.

"This novel house of worship will eliminate the objection to holding services during the heated months, and it is expected that it will become a popular place for Sunday evenings."

The services are to be in charge of the Rev. Tyler Dennett, assistant minister of the Church of the Covenant. Dr. Dennett stated today that the Covenant Church Tent is not only for the members of his own church who wish to attend services while the big edifice is closed, but for others who have no place of worship.

The Rev. Dr. Charles Wood, pastor of the Church of the Covenant, will preach at the opening service tomorrow night.

CROWDS WILL FLOCK TO COLONIAL BEACH

Colonial Beach will be a Mecca this afternoon and tomorrow morning of hundreds of residents of this city who will go to that resort to spend the Decoration Day holiday.

The steamer St. Johns will make two special trips to the resort, leaving here this afternoon at 6 o'clock and again tomorrow morning at 9 o'clock.

The crabbing is excellent and fishing good. While the water is cool those who have been in bathing say it is pleasant. In consequence of the fact that the repair work on steamers, the Colonial Beach Company expected to use for a charter party to the beach Monday has not been completed, the company will turn the St. Johns over to the stevedores for Monday.
